

NTEU 2008: Adequate agency funding and stop contracting out

Let's keep on telling Congress that runaway contracting is a waste of taxpayer money because...

- There is little effective federal oversight;
- Unlike federal employees, contractors escape accountability; and
- Contractors know if they can't finish the job—or in some cases, even get around to starting it—federal workers will be there to get the work done for the public.
- There is some federal work that should never be considered for contracting out—like collecting taxes. NTEU will continue to fight to repeal the IRS's private tax collection program.

That's why the work needs to stay in the hands of federal employees in the first place.

We can do it.

Because we have a strong union and a strong voice.
