Happy Labor Recognition Week!

As an NTEU member, you are on the front lines every day serving our country, keeping it safe, helping your fellow citizens and keeping our economy strong. It’s no small feat, but it all happens because of the dedication, talent and commitment of federal employees like you who believe deeply in public service.

That’s why we take the time every year to recognize your contributions as a federal employee and union member. All this week, NTEU chapters around the country at 33 different agencies are celebrating Labor Recognition Week (LRW). We will be posting all week on our Facebook page. Join us there and share the LRW excitement with your network.

What’s remarkable about our members is that you never lose sight of your important work, even when faced with great challenges. And this year had no shortage of them—from the longest partial government shutdown in our nation’s history to attacks on workplace rights and benefits. But we are “NTEU United,” and when we stand together we cannot be defeated. Our more than 80-year history proves that.

I am grateful to each of you for making our union thrive and our country strong. It is truly an honor to represent the men and women of the federal workforce.

P.S.—Don’t forget to check out and spread the word about our Telling Our Stories campaign starring you—our members—sharing interesting tidbits about how your work impacts the everyday lives of Americans. It’s on TheyWorkForUs.org and our Facebook page.
